

ABOUT GOT BOOKS

Founded in 2000 in the owner's basement, Got Books has grown exponentially from our modest beginnings to our current 69,000 square foot warehouse. From one employee to nearly 100, our company has grown to include five retail book super store locations and a fleet of Got Books trucks.

Got Books provides hundreds of nonprofit groups with an easy fundraising program. Book donation containers are placed throughout New England at schools, town halls, retail parking lots and a variety of other public locations to raise money. Since 2007 we have raised nearly a million dollars for local nonprofit groups and saved millions of books from landfills.

As a for-profit book reuse company and professional fundraiser, we're dedicated to finding good homes for your donated books, CDs, DVDs, audio books, and records. Every book donation we receive is hand sorted at our warehouse to find its best possible purpose. Books are sent overseas through our Books for Troops program, donated to local teachers and schools through our Books for Teachers program, donated to local groups in need through our Get Books program, or sold online and at our Used Book Superstores where every book is discounted dramatically below its original price. We keep books out of the trash, as well as ensure that books will be used in the best way possible.

Got Books has been featured in such prestigious news outlets as WCVB's 'Chronicle', The Boston Globe, WBZ-TV, Real Simple Magazine, Boston Magazine, The New Yorker, NPR, WTKK-FM and many more.
